HENRY GOLDEN DEARTH MEMORIAL EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS

OCTOBER SEVEN TO OCTOBER TWENTY-SIX, 1919
HENRY GOLDEN DEARTH, N. A., American painter, born in Bristol, R. I., 1864, died March 18, 1918. This Memorial Exhibition, organized by Cornelia Sage-Quinton, Director of the Albright Art Gallery, and Mrs. Dearth, is an epitome of his life work not only in its completeness, but in its portrayal of the different phases through which that work passed to its final expression.

His art had three distinct periods. The first, dating from 1890, shows tonal landscapes of fine poetic quality, usually of the picturesque French country. The second, beginning in 1912, gives us his studies in broken color. These include figures, but the distinctive canvases of this period are the so-called "pools" and "marines," painted in Brittany.

The latest and most important paintings are arrangements of still life, Gothic, Renaissance, Oriental; or portraits and figures against a background of old textiles, Japanese screens or wood carvings, rich in color and quality.

Mr. Dearth was a pupil of l'Ecole des Beaux Arts and of Aimé Morot, Paris. He won many prizes and medals, and is represented in many public and private collections in America and abroad.
