

Eli Whitney Elementary / Rosario Castellanos Elementary

If the Shoe Fits...(mural), 2006

Acrylic on canvas, mural

Students of Chicago's Eli Whitney and Rosario Castellanos elementary schools (under the guidance of SAIC students Pablo Serrano and Alberto Sepulveda) studied international films and children's books to gain a sense of the social implications of multicultural variants of #510 and to consider how those themes are expressed in their daily lives. Working with their family members' castoff shoes, the students developed this mural with their own interpretations written upon the painted shoes.
